HIT WITH HAMMERS.

Jews Were Murdered With Most Revolting Barbarity.

EYES WERE GOUGED

Nails Also Driven Into Bodies of the Unfortunate Victims, Ears Cut Off and In Many Cases Disemboweling Done.

Odessa, Nov. 6.—A tour of the city and part of the suburbs today found all quiet.

Whole rows of shops that were pillaged have been boarded up. The poorer Jews suffered worst, and the principal streets, with few exceptions, were untouched. Russian shops are marked with crosses painted on the shutters and the private houses with iron so as to protect them from the mobs. Peasants armed with knives tried to enter the city Saturday, but were driven back.

The casualties in Saturday's disturbances exceeded 140, and those of the preceding three days, which have been verified, number nearly 5600. The plundering continued early Monday morning in the outlying districts, but later the city was relatively calm, though the population is still anxious.

The latest accounts of the devastation in the Jewish quarter add horror to the situation. Besides numerous mills, all the bakeries, shops and nearly 600 homes have been destroyed. The Jews killed in every circumstance were treated with revolting barbarity. Heads were battered with hammers, nails driven into bodies, eyes gouged out and ears severed. Many bodies were disembowelled, and in some cases petroleum poured over the sick found hiding in cellars, and they were burned to death.

It is alleged that the police and soldiers marched at the head of the mobs.

While the mobs were engaged in the slaughter the soldiers busied themselves pillaging the cash and jewels, leaving the household goods to the mobs.

The police prevented anyone from arresting the looters, and prevented also the Red Cross workers from aiding the wounded, actually firing on those engaged in this work.

A band of students received much of the stolen property to the university, while they also took twelve dead bodies of Jewish demonstrators, whose relatives demanded their release. They threatened otherwise to burn the university and kill the professors.

FIENDISH CRUELITIES.

Bodies Buried In Great Pits to Conceal Their Numbers.

London, Nov. 6.—The Odessa correspondent of the Standard, under date of Nov. 5, sends further sensational accounts of the riots there. He says:

"There have been more horrifying massacres and fiendish cruelties, but the districts where these took place are now cordoned by troops. Probably the total killed will number 3500 and the wounded 12,000. In the suburb of Moldovanka alone 1000 victims remained in the streets from midnight until noon, when the authorities hastened to collect and bury the bodies in great pits in order to conceal their numbers. Two private doctors attended more than 300 children of both sexes who had been horribly gashed about the head and shoulders with sabers. Heaping insult on injury, the civil government Sunday, when the butchery had ended, asked the householders to subscribe $100,000 to pay the police increased wages."

FATAL ENCOUNTERS.

At One Place Hundred Persons Were Killed and Six Hundred Wounded.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 6.—Fatal encounters between the soldiers and the populace and anti-Jewish excesses are reported from many places in the provinces. Saturday and Sunday at Kremenchug twenty persons were killed and eighty injured. At Kutias a military train was wrecked and nine soldiers killed. After the collision the revolutionaries opened a rifle fire on the train and the troops replied in kind. There were several killed or injured on both sides.

At Berdicheff several persons were killed or injured and at Minsk serious rioting arose through the troops preventing a meeting of citizens. The troops fired volleys into the crowds and there was intermittent firing for a long time. A hundred were killed and 600 wounded. Indescribable horrors are being witnessed every day.

The massacre and pillage of the Jews continue at Kishineff.

General Trepoff forbade public funerals Sunday, fearing rioting would ensue.

Jewish Militia on Guard.

Warsaw, Nov. 6.—Jewish militia is guarding Jewish houses. Four disguised detectives, trying to cause disturbances, were shot to death.

Negress Slain.

Forney, Tex., Nov. 6.—Mollie Graves, a negress, who conducted a restaurant here, was shot and killed by officers in seeking to arrest John Johnson, a negro section hand, who was armed with a shotgun, after a desperate encounter shot him in a leg and captured him.

AUTOMOBILE MISHAPS

One Lady Killed and Seven More More Persons Hurt.

SKULL IS FRACTURED

Unprecedented Number of Accidents Take Place at Los Angeles In the Short Period of One Night and Day.

Los Angeles, Nov. 6.—An unprecedented series of automobile accidents occurred at this place in twenty-four hours. During that time one person was killed, another one perhaps fatally injured and six others more or less seriously hurt. The dead is Mrs. H. T. Austin, thirty years old, whose skull was fractured. Those injured are: Miss Edith Polay, nineteen years of age, skull fractured, not expected to recover; C. C. Davis, local real estate dealer, lacerated and bruised; F. B. Kendall, sprained leg, several contusions and shock; Eugene L. Titus and wife, woman internally injured and may die, man bruised; Mrs. R. R. Robins, White City, Kan., arm and leg broken; Louis Marak, cut on head; Messrs. Davis and Kendall were injured about midnight Saturday night when the machine in which they were riding stalled on the street car tracks in front of a rapidly running car with the result that the car crashed into and demolished the auto, injuring all occupants. Titus and wife, an elderly couple, were run down by an auto while they were driving on Alpicco and Hill streets, both being thrown on the ground and injured. Their horse was killed. The others were injured by being struck by an automobile while crossing streets on foot.

In another collision, in which two machines crashed together, several people were thrown out of their cars and injured.

SEVEN BEING TREATED.

This is Expected to Be Windup Week of the Yellow Pest.

New Orleans, Nov. 6.—What is expected to be the final week of the fever campaign began with only seven cases under treatment and only a handful of centers of infection under observation. The forces employed by the Federal service have now been reduced to the minimum necessary to observe the few cases, and feet remaining, and district and headquarter work are being cleaned up, so an early transfer of the health situation back into the hands of the local authorities may be made. The announcement that Dr. White is not going to Chattanooga will enable him personally to supervise the end of the campaign.

The lifting of the Alabama quarantine has permitted a complete restoration of railroad schedules of roads that reach that state, and already heavy travel has set in.

No advice have been received indicating any change of attitude by Texas on the question of quarantine, occurrence of cases at Derridder, in Calcasieu parish, apparently convincing Texas authorities that the danger is not altogether past.

Up to noon Monday there was one new case of yellow fever and no deaths.

RED SPIDER.

Department of Agriculture Says It Has Been Quite Prevalent.

Washington, Nov. 6.—The department of agriculture in a report just issued says the red spider of rust mite has been quite prevalent in some sections of the cotton growing area of this country during the past two years. The spider is a minute yellowish red mite, which feeds on the cotton plant, principally on the under sides of the leaves, but at times attacking all parts of the plant. The report says the pest is probably distributed throughout the entire cotton growing area of the south, although during late years its occurrence in injurious numbers has not been reported until the summer of 1903, when it caused considerable damage to cotton in South Carolina and Georgia.

FATAL COLLISION.

Passenger Train and Street Car Come Together, With Serious Results.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—By a collision a Grand Trunk passenger train and a street car which was crossing the Grand Trunk tracks Monday morning, two persons are killed and three serious injured.

SIX THOUSAND.

This Number Killed or Wounded During the Riots at Odessa.

Odessa, Nov. 6.—It is now estimated that the killed and wounded during the recent riots here number 6000. The city hospital alone contains 2000 wounded.

Saw Child Murdered.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 6.—James Winstead is in jail at Rogersville, Tenn. He is charged with murdering his child. His wife, dying with consumption, and who is his second wife, says she saw her husband take the little girl's life. The child was by Winstead's first wife.

OHIO CAMPAIGN.

It Closed With a Roar of Oratory All Over Buckeye State.

Columbus, Nov. 6.—One of the hottest campaigns in the history of Ohio closed Saturday night with a roar of emphatic oratory and in a haze of uncertainty as to the outcome. The chairmen of the two parties gave out estimates based on a poll of the state, which are so far apart as to add to the uncertainty rather than indicate a possible middle ground. For the Republicans, Senator Feraker said his poll was the most conservatively made and indicated that Governor Herrick would be re-elected by not less than 83,000 plurality, while Chairman Garber of the Democratic committee announced his was extremely conservative, summing up his poll of the state showed a certainty of Pattison's election by 36,000 plurality. This same state of uncertainty characterized the entire campaign, notwithstanding the positive way in which campaigners have discussed political bossism, saloon regulation, insurance legislation and railroad rates. Governor Herrick's re-election has been opposed by the Anti-Saloon league, because, it is alleged, he used the veto power as a threat to force changes in the Brannock law, providing local option for residence districts, and by Democrats on general principles, but with the addition of bitter attacks on him because of his friendship for George B. Cox, the Republican leader of Hamilton county, who is denounced as a "boss." To these attacks the Republicans replied that changes made in the Brannock law was necessary and beneficial; that the "bossism" charge was local to Cincinnati and should not be held against Governor Herrick, whose administration has been a sound business one. It is reasonably certain that Ohio will decide to do away with annual elections and vote hereafter only in alternate years.

MYRON T. HERRICK, GOVERNOR OF OHIO.

ELEVENTH-HOUR CLAIMS.

Republicans and Reform Movement Confident of Being Successful.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—At the eleventh hour, leaders of the Republican organization and reform movement are claiming the victory in the election. Senator Penrose said the belated reports confirmed the opinion that the "Republican ticket, state and county, would be elected by a good majority."

City party workers completed an unofficial canvass of the city and as a result they claim a majority of not less than 33,000. Franklin S. Edmonds, chairman of the City party, issued an official estimate based upon actual canvasses made by the three separate interests. Prompt action was taken by the City party managers against illegal voters. Secretary Gibbons of the Law and Order society has been engaged to conduct the prosecutions and he prepared 1000 warrants for use.

The Democratic party, which is supporting the City party ticket, through City Chairman Donnelly, sent out a circular urging all Democrats to work unceasingly for the Democratic ticket and City party nominees. Two hundred detectives and special policemen, aided by a force of local officers, are investigating lodging houses in order to locate, if possible, any illegal voters.

Both Claim Victory.

Louisville, Nov. 6.—Interest in the election is centered in the choice of mayor at Louisville. Both candidates closed the campaign Saturday and both claimed victory. Paul Barth, Democrat, and J. T. O'Neal, fusion, made an active campaign. Lewis McQuown, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, claims the Democratic party controls the legislature, which will elect a United States senator to succeed Senator Blackburn.

MEN IN SKIRTS.

Taking the World All Around They Are in the Majority.

If there is one thing presumably certain on this earth, in the opinion of most of us, it is that skirts are essentially feminine and that the special feature of masculine attire is a bifurcated garment. But nothing is further from the truth. To this day the majority of the male element of the human race, so far as it wears clothes at all, is skirted. And in past times, not so very long ago, a gown down to the feet was the correct wear of respectability in civilized Europe.

An anecdote told of St. Louis, king of France, illustrates this well. That monarch was the stoutest of warriors, a man whom no one knowing anything about would dream of accusing of being effeminate, but on one occasion he seriously offered to exchange costumes with a richly dressed female relative who had blamed him for wearing the unpretentious garments he usually affected, which, she said, were unsuited to a king. But she thought his gown too plain for her, so declined the offer. Now it is impossible to imagine a man like St. Louis even suggesting such a thing if the dress of men and women had not been practically identical except for war and hunting. Indeed, a glance at old pictures confirms this impression.—Grand Magazine.

TWO MAIDENS.

A Silly Little Fable, but One That Points a Moral.

Once there were two Maidens who sought to Catch a Nice Young Man, who also was a Good Thing. And it was a False Start in the Eyes of the Undiscovered, for the One was Exceedingly Plain, while the Other was Dressed Stylishly, and her Rat was Always Showing through her Pompadour. The Pretty Girl Smiled Sweetly on the Nice Young Man, who was also a Good Thing, and Talked to Him till She Dazzled him with her Beauty and charmed Him with her Wit. The Plain One gazed Wonderingly at him and Made Him Talk to her of Divers Things, while She listened, Entranced at his Wisdom and Learning. He took the Pretty Girl out Riding and to the Theater and Bought her Candy and Flowers, and All the Knowing Ones said She had struck a Winning Gait on an Automobile wedding Tour of Europe. The Pretty Girl had Made him Very much Pleased with Her, but the Plain Girl had Gone her One Better and Made him Very much More Pleased with Himself.

Moral.—The People who Read Human Nature as they Run Generally get First to the Wire.—Baltimore American.

JOHN PAUL JONES.

British View of the Hero of the Bonhomme Richard.

John Paul, the Kirkcubright market gardener's son, who elected to be famous as Paul Jones, has long ceased to be the interesting personage he was in the eyes of the naval authorities of the country when in command of a rotten ex-East Indiaman known as the Duc de Duras and rechristened the Bonhomme Richard he was a holy terror in the fifth of Forth, and when he had engaged and captured a British frigate in British waters after one of the most singular sea combats on record.

The same time "blackbird" and muggler whom the Russian Catherine decorated and advanced somewhat per altum to the grade of admiral was a traitor of course in the view of the British government, but none the less thorough seaman of quite unusual talent and originality, with a bulldog courage and tenacity to match. The captain Jones, too, who sent Lady Selkirk back her plate with his compliments had the instincts of a gentleman. More than the other countries he served America has recognized his merits.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Sealing Wax.

It is singular enough that the oldest printed recipe for making common sealing wax, published at Augsburg in 1579, describes the use of almost the same ingredients as those at present employed. Rosin, the whitest that can be obtained; Venice turpentine and vermilion are the components. For black wax, lampblack is to be added; blue wax, smalt, and for yellow, pigment. When sealing wax was widely used this was the case at present, scented wax was an article frequently on sale at fancy stationers.

The Risk Too Great.

"I don't doubt your love," replied the stern father, "but have you had the measles or the whooping cough? It wouldn't be fair, you know, to take you into the family and to nurse you through those common-sense time or other."

A Suggestion.

Sloman—Now, you're joking aren't you? Miss Waite—Judge yourself. You should know me well by this time. Mr. Sloman—You puzzle me sometimes. I don't want to make of you. Miss—No? By the way, did you hear Jack Brown and May Long? He married his wife yesterday.—St. Louis Public.

ance in the voice is often only a battle of reason.—Boyes.

WOMAN CAME FIRST.

Eskimo Tradition as to the Origin of the Human Family.

The arctic Eskimos have their tradition of the origin of man, much the same as the Caucasian, and their tales of the prowess in battle, their sagas relating the past glories of what is now an almost extinct race are as thrilling as some of those that tell of the wondrous deeds of Odin and Thor or of those Grecian ancients whose deeds are yet preserved in prose and poetry.

According to Eskimo tradition, the first man was made not from the dust of the earth, but from a piece of chewing gum, for he it known that the Indian is the original gum chewer as well as tobacco smoker. But woman was first. The first woman was lying one day on her couch of furs chewing gum. Growing weary, she took it from her mouth and fashioned it into the form of a man. Tired then, she fell asleep, to find upon her awakening that the breath of life had been breathed into the figure of gum of which she had been the architect, and, lo, man was there! And so the world began to be peopled.

It is related as a fact that high upon a mountain to the north and east of Point Hope are the skeletons of three komiaks, or boats, in good condition. They have been well preserved during 20,000 years or more by climatic conditions and may have been the original Noah's arks. They at one time in all probability rested upon the beach.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

CHARCOAL.

The Way That Used in Making Gunpowder Is Produced.

Charcoal making for gunpowder is a much more complicated process than the ordinary field kiln manufacture. Only certain kinds of wood are used—usually the young shoots of elder and willow—and it is cut in the spring, so that the bark may be stripped off. It is then piled under airy, open sheds and allowed to remain several years until it is thoroughly dried. When the powder maker is ready for a new supply of charcoal the wood is cut into lengths of three feet and placed in tight iron retorts, under and around which a fire roars continually. The dampers and pipes are so arranged that the workmen have complete control of the heat. At the end of the retort a hole is left for the escape of the inflammable gases resulting from the charring process. A pipe catches them as they leave the retort and conveys them into the furnace, where they take the place of a good deal of fuel. When the flames of the gas become a deep blue color the workmen know that the wood is sufficiently charred, and the retort is cooled down as quickly as possible. The charcoal is then left for a week or more before grinding, because if placed in the machine at once there is danger of spontaneous combustion. The best charcoal is jet black and fractures show velvety surfaces.

A Mystery About Blood.

There is something very mysterious about the color of human blood, or, rather, as to what causes its red color. The physiologists say that "the color of blood is due to the red corpuscles which are contained in the vein fluids," but this does not nearly explain the mystery. An aggregation of blood corpuscles is red, to be sure, but in small numbers they are yellow, while one or two examined separately are found to be of a very light straw color. Why a large aggregation of these tiny disks should convey the impression of red to our senses, while a few show a yellow and a single specimen of light straw color, is something we would like to see explained.—St. Louis Republic.

A Dangerous Symptom.

When a member of Aunt Eunice Washington's family died—the family she had served with faithfulness so many years—the old woman's grief was as poignant as if she had understood the causes which led to it. "It's de same trouble took Miss Lily off dat took her sister Marianna eight years ago," she said to a friend, wiping her eyes on her gay plaid apron. "When I heard Dr. Sam speak 'bout 'de vital spot' I knew Miss Lily wouldn't stay hyar much longer. When dat vital spot comes out on a pussion you might jes' as well lay down your hope an' prepare for de end."

Feeders of the Rhine.

A German geographer calls attention to the fact, known to few, that the Rhine gets some of its water from Italy. Some miles above the Via Mala the Rhine is augmented by a turbulent mountain torrent whose chief tributary is a brook that comes from the Val di Lei, which politically belongs to Italy, though separated from the rest of that country by glacier covered mountains over which there is a trail to Chiavenna.

Incomprehensible.

"And," asked her dearest friend after she had returned from her wedding trip, "is your husband just as you expected he would be? Aren't you disappointed in him in any way?" "Well, yes," she replied; "or, I don't know that it is disappointment exactly, but I can't understand how he can see a letter addressed to me lying around all day and never think of opening it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Beach Sands.

A party of chauffeurs were walking along Cape May beach. One of them picked up a handful of sand and said: "Why is it that one beach is firm enough for motor cars, while another is so soft a child can hardly walk on it?" "The sand in your hand answers that question," the second chauffeur replied. "See how fine it is." The sand was, indeed, as fine as dust, as fine as talcum powder. "The finer a sand is the more closely it will pack and, by consequence, the firmer surface it will offer," went on the second chauffeur. "This fine sand here makes a roadbed many feet in depth—a roadbed you couldn't pack more closely if you rolled it a hundred years with a hundred ton roller. Study the sand at Long Branch or Asbury Park. It is prettier than this. It is made of separate grains that you can readily distinguish. Each is a perfect cube, white or black or red—a beautiful clear colored shape that it is a pleasure to look at. Each is about fifty times bigger than the Cape May grains; hence the sand of Asbury Park or Long Branch won't pack down, won't make a firm roadbed. There is only one place in the country where the sand is finer than at Cape May, and that place is Ormond."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Modesty of Hokusai.

Young artists, not gaining distinction early, have had various instances to quote as showing that mastery performance often came late in life. In Dora Amsden's book on Japanese art it is set forth that this is what the celebrated Japanese artist Hokusai wrote about himself: "From the age of six I had a mania for drawing the forms of things. By the time I was fifty I had published an infinity of designs, but all I have produced before the age of seventy is not worth taking into account. At seventy-five I learned a little about the real structure of nature—of animals, plants and trees, birds, fishes and insects. In consequence, when I am eighty I shall have made still more progress. At ninety I shall penetrate the mystery of things. At a hundred I shall certainly have reached a marvelous stage, and when I am 110 everything I do—be it but a line or dot—will be alive. I beg those who live as long as I do to see if I do not keep my word." Hokusai died in 1849 at the age of eighty-nine.

Why Rossini Wept.

When Meyerbeer died his son composed a funeral march which "remembered his dead father." Full of emotion, the young man took it to Rossini. "Play it, maestro," he pleaded; "play it. I wrote it in expression of my grief and mourning for my dead father." Rossini took it up, placed it on his piano and played it. Tears rolled down his cheeks. Utter sadness dwelt upon his countenance. "You weep," cried young Meyerbeer, beside himself with joy at the effect upon the great master. "Yes, I weep," rejoined Rossini amid tears.

"And why?" "Because," replied Rossini, "I am wishing that you were dead and it was your father who had written the funeral march."

Nilsson and Patti.

When Christine Nilsson, the great singer, was asked her opinion of various singers, she gave it very candidly of every one, including herself and Mme. Albani, but she never once alluded to Mme. Patti. "You have not mentioned Mme. Patti," remarked the pertinacious interviewer. "No," said Mme. Nilsson, "I have not. You are asking about singers. I do not regard Patti as a singer. I place her among the angels. A Patti only comes to a planet once during that planet's existence." Such an absence of stage jealousy has probably never been equaled.

Date Mark a Bagdad Malady.

Bagdad date mark is the name given to a mysterious disease that attacks nearly every one who stays in Bagdad for any length of time and is found also at Aleppo and other places in Turkish Asia. It is a sore that comes only once, but lasts a year, leaving a scar the shape of a date. No remedy has been found for it, but hyposulphite of soda seems to have some effect on the mark.

The Beauty of the Lilies.

"Er—Miss Hardy—Grace—do you not think that these valley lilies are very beautiful?" "Not so beautiful as orange blossoms, Mr. Jones." And, thus assisted and encouraged, he presently drifted out upon the wide, wide sea of wedded bliss.

Intimation.

"So the insolent fellow refused to pay his rent?" "He did not say so in words, but he intimated it." "How so?" "He kicked me downstairs."—Paris Journal.

CIRCUS DAY.

The Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' Shows are Coming Soon.

The circus is one of the big things of America that has made the traveling observer pause and think. The marvelous system which achieves the building of a well ordered village with a population of twelve hundred in the hours of early dawn each day, and packs up and re-establishes itself miles away for the next breakfast, has attracted the curious study of military chiefs and other leaders of great bodies of men, and huge business institutions. It is this marvelous management that draws multitudes of people to the train yards to witness the unloading of the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' enormous shows. The great caravans are unloaded with dispatch, and the circus man and animal upon whom devolves the burdens incident to placing the tremendous equipment upon the show lots glide gently and efficiently into the place allotted for individual duty. It takes four special trains to carry the Forepaugh and Sells colony from town to town. Everything must be epic and ready for the daily parade, starting from the circus grounds at ten o'clock. The several hundred horses that take part in this big spectacle are freshly groomed every morning, and the thousand or more men, women and children are alert and contented looking in the gorgeous pageant. This street display of the Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Shows rises above all other efforts of the kind fascinating detail, magnificent display and extraordinary length. Most circus parades are tiring affairs, because of the unkept expression of people and things. The horses are apt to be slow moving and worn, and the people, as a rule, strongly suggest the idea of strenuous times. At last, thanks to the able management of Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Shows, this is changed, and the morning of circus day a procession winds its way over the business streets of the town that is worth much inconvenience to see, and that is altogether superior to anything of the ever organized before. Hundreds of graceful women riders modishly groomed; expert men riders mounted upon blueblooded and high-stepping equines; scores of open animal dens; gorgeous tableaux of floats—in fact, this street pageant is the magnificent and magnified display of circus glories ever yet brought forward by amusement enterprise. This feature alone costs this show a million dollars, and is an imposing demonstration of their tremendous resources and determined ambition to make this circus institution the greatest on earth. Two performances will be given here at two in the afternoon and eight in the evening.

At Double Tee Ranch

By FRANK H. SWEET

Copyright, 1905, by E. C. Parcells

"No man can win me until he proves himself a better cowboy than I am!" flashed the girl. Then, as her gaze swept over the assembled outfit of the Double Tee ranch, she broke into a ringing, scornful laugh. But the men felt there had been more than jest in her words. Hairy faced Tom Bigelow—Wooley Dog Tom—placed his hand over his heart.

"Them's p'inted sentiments, Miss Tensie," he rebuked suavely, "and it implies us boys here considerable, seeing four of us have asked you to marry since you stood here on the horse. Now in justice to the Double Tee outfit we'd ask you to name the conditions and cards. If it's to round up a stampeding herd single handed or ride a locoed horse or—"

"I don't think the man's among you, Mr. Wooley," interrupted the girl. "If you'll hurry Pete up with that note I'll be going. I could have written a dozen answers in this time. There he comes now."

A cowboy was emerging from the ranch shack, and following him was the new owner, fresh from the east and immaculate in a tailor made cowboy costume. He was a handsome fellow and came forward quickly, doffing his hat.

"Tell your father I am awfully obliged to him for his neighborliness, Miss Neuman," he said, "and that he can depend upon me to be at the ranchmen's meeting. I want to identify myself with the country now. This note will explain about the horses. I'm sorry to have kept you waiting so long, but there seemed to be no paper or pencils in the outfit."

Tensie Neuman took the note and bowed, then touched her horse lightly. As she swept away the curiosity in the new owner's eyes was mingled with surprised admiration.

"A magnificent girl!" he ejaculated involuntarily. But Robson, the foreman, was near enough to hear him.

"Yes," he said quietly; "you don't see such girls in the east, Mr. Rand, and even here on the plains Miss Tensie is an exception."

"She's a goddess!" agreed Mr. Rand enthusiastically. Then he swung suddenly to the outfit, his face darkening.

"Look here, men!" he cried hotly. "I don't like the way you talked to that girl. It was positively insulting. Why, I heard four of you proposing to the girl right here in the presence of all the rest, and you were in earnest."

"In dead earnest," assented Wooley Dog Tom pathetically—"the dearest kind of earnest. An' I have myself heard the same four propose to her individually an' collectively more times than I've got fingers an' toes an' generally in the presence of witnesses. An' why not? Everybody knows every cuss here loves her, an' 'tain't nothin' to be ashamed of. Lord, Mr. Rand, we've been acquainted with Miss Tensie ever since her father brought her to this ranch two years ago, an' we've been proposing to her on all chances an' occasions through the twenty-four months. I'd have asked her to marry me today only these coyotes kept their everlasting jaws going."

"What gets me," said Wild Smith gently, "is how she snaps out sometimes, just like now. Maybe we ought to draw her off by herself, boys, an' not speak out so in meetin'. Maybe gals like proposin's to be private rehearsals."

"Not Miss Tensie," declared Wooley Dog Tom authoritatively. "It's practice for her to say no in different ways. She's bound to like it. Lord, I'd rather hear her say no than any other gal yes! It's worth proposin' just to have her eyes on one and her attention for a minute. And that's the way we all feel. Every cuss in this outfit has been proposin' to her, except Robson there, an' he don't propose to nobody. He's too all fired dried up. Now, Mr. Rand—"

"Never mind bringing me in," said Mr. Rand shortly. "No girl cares to be proposed to in that way, much less a girl like Miss Neuman. You cowboys—"

"Are as fine a lot of men as there are in the world," finished the foreman briskly. "I am glad you feel that way about us, Mr. Rand, especially as you are to become a cowboy, in a way, yourself. Miss Tensie regards us in the same manner, for she knows that any one in the outfit would give his life freely to save her from danger, and that is more than many of the well dressed men east would do. The mere fact of her having to familiarize us with the word 'No' detracts nothing from the warm feeling between her and the outfit. And, yes, I will add that, contrary to Mr. Wooley Dog Tom's belief, I proposed to her myself more than a year ago and was refused. Now—sharply—"all of you scatter to the upper range and relieve the boys there. Keep an extra keen lookout, for the wolves are around again and liable to cause another bad stampede. Miss Tensie rode that way, you know, and, brave and familiar with cattle as she is, I wouldn't like her to get in front of a stampede when wolves were behind. I don't think there is any real danger, of course, or I would have warned her. Wolves are not apt to venture out till night, but I shall go along."

There had not been a serious stampede for several weeks, though scattering wolves were seen almost daily along the edge of the foothills. At night the cowboys were unusually vigilant, with occasional fires built at dangerous points, and so the wolves had been kept back. And it was at night alone that danger was apprehended.

But the wolves had been growing hungry, and with hunger came boldness. An hour's riding, with ten miles left behind, and the cowboys saw the figure which they had only tried to keep within sight whirl suddenly and come toward them. A few moments later came a dull vibration of the earth which caused Robson to throw his horse forward, with a curse.

"Ride, boys!" he yelled. "Stampeding cattle, and you know Miss Tensie's horse came thirty miles from her father's ranch this morning and is too exhausted to lead a stampede driven by wolves. Ride as you never did before. Sweep in between her and the cattle and then turn, and, if need be, every one of you die before a horn touches her horse."

"To blazes with you!" cried Wooley Dog Tom wrathfully. "What reason have you to say that? Ain't we all proposed to her last?"

But Tensie was a mile away, and before that distance was lessened by half the stampede had swept over the slope behind and was closing in on her. A quarter of a mile, and the clashing horns were less than a dozen yards away; an eighth, and they were at her horse's flank.

Robson's face was set in rigid lines. He had ridden many miles also that morning, and his horse was not so fresh as his companions', but by sheer force of will he pushed the animal ahead of the others, two, three, four lengths, and when the clashing horns closed in upon Tensie's horse he was less than twenty yards away. But no power on earth could now check his terrific speed in advance of the onrushing stampede. A second, and his arm rose steadily and unerringly. There were two sharp reports, and then the cattle obliterated them.

A seeming trifle may sometimes check or divide an avalanche. Almost simultaneously with the reports the two frenzied animals that were crowding upon Tensie's horse fell, and instinctively the cattle directly behind swerved a little to the right and left to avoid them. Others followed, and thus a narrow path was left through the stampede.

After the cattle had passed Tensie looked at her companion. His hand was grasping her arm, and she noticed that it trembled. Her own face was white, but her eyes had softened.

"Dick," she whispered, "you are a better cowboy than I am."

Blind Justice.

Captain Joe Nicholson, to memory dear in Detroit, used to tell of a long time prisoner who had been in the house of correction while the captain ran that institution.

Just before his term expired the convict called the captain and told him that justice was now done and that an honest man would start fresh in the world.

"But you have told me several times that you were innocent of the charge on which you were sent here."

"So I was, Captain Joe, and I can prove it. Here are the names of three witnesses. Get their statement and see whether I'm lying."

Just as a matter of curiosity the captain complied and found convincing evidence of the man's innocence.

The convict was called in and indignantly asked why he had not used his evidence in getting a new trial.

"I'll tell you, captain. In my time I was acquitted three or four times when I was guilty, so when I was convicted of something I never did I just thought I'd even things up by taking my medicine without kicking. Besides that, it sort of tickled me to find that justice had missed me at every shot."—Detroit Journal.

Too Logical.

Mr. Blank, head of the great business of Blank & Son, regularly scanned the attendance book, noting punctuality or otherwise. His son was the greatest offender, and he wrote across his entries, "Mr. George Blank keeps very bad time."

Mr. George, "bluffing," appended to this remark, "Time was made for slaves," and laughed much among the higher employees at his wit.

On the 1st of each month the cashier handed each employee his check in a sealed envelope. Mr. George was always eager for his, having expensive tastes of all kinds.

On the next payment after his rejoinder he opened his envelope and found a slip of paper on which was written: "Time was made for slaves. Time is money. But Mr. George Blank is not a slave; therefore he requires no money."

Mr. George, who was a university man, avowed that despite his former studies he found this proposition too logical for him.—London Answers.

A Sad Reminder.

A story is told by the writer of "Some Stories of the Concert Platform" concerning Mme. Patey, the famous English contralto. The singer was delighting a large audience in the town hall at Birmingham when a workman at the rear of the building was observed to be in tears. There was nothing in the words to account for this display of feeling, and had this been otherwise the famed prima donna was singing in the Italian tongue. But the grief of the man became more pronounced ere Mme. Patey had concluded. At length, amid a thunder of applause, the singer retired, and the stranger was asked the reason of his grief.

"She reminds me so o' my darter," said the tearful one. "She was in the singin' line."

"But surely your daughter could not sing like that?" queried the man in the next seat.

"No," answered the mourner, with another sob; "but you never could tell what she was singin' about!"

REUNION OF CARNES FAMILY.

Thirty-Two Members Attend a Meeting Held at State Fair Press Headquarters.

From the Dallas News Nov. 5.

A meeting of the Carnes family was held at press headquarters at the State Fair Grounds yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Following a dinner prepared by the Dallas and Dallas county members of the family, A. C. Carnes of West Dallas was elected chairman and Malcolm Carnes of Bryan, elected secretary. In calling the meeting to order previous to the election of the chairman, Dr. A. W. Carnes of Hutchins stated that it was desired to have the older members of the family to make addresses. The first speaker was W. D. G. Carnes of Thorpe Springs, Texas, who gave a history of the family and outlined its characteristics. He made a reference to the fact that probably all present would never meet on earth again, but that all may meet to part no more in heaven.

J. M. Carnes of Alpine, Texas, made an address regarding the pleasures of the occasion, and related many incidents of family history. He said that he came to Texas twenty-five years ago from Tennessee and the balance of the family had followed him.

W. D. Carnes of West Dallas was the third speaker and said that this must be the first of many reunions in Dallas, "the hub of Texas."

Dr. A. W. Carnes of Hutchins made another appeal for continued meetings.

Campbell Carnes, a member of the third generation, was the next speaker.

The venerable chairman was then called and made the assembly laugh by many humorous anecdotes.

There were thirty-two members of the family present, represented by four generations. They were: Alexander Campbell Carnes, West Dallas; W. D. G. Carnes, Thorpe Springs; Joseph Malcolm Carnes, Garland, Texas; I. R. Best, Mrs. I. R. Best, Ardmore, I. T.; Wm. David Carnes, Dallas; Alva Wood Carnes, Hutchins; Ellen Carnes Naylor, Moody, Tex.; Florence Carnes Howard, Moody, Tex.; Ivy Carnes, Bryan; Mrs. Wm. D. Carnes, Mrs. Mrs. A. C. Carnes, Dallas; J. K. Walling, Roswell, N. M.; Mrs. A. N. Carnes, Hutchins; Mrs. Lillie Carnes Wade, Weston; Elizabeth Carnes, Dallas; Alva Campbell Carnes, Hutchins; Maggie Lillian Carnes, Dallas; Will Allen Carnes, Dallas; Bertie Carnes Harper, Houston; Belma Walker Carnes, Dallas; Alva Robert Carnes, Fort Worth; Malcolm Carnes, Bryan; Mrs. Dena Coulter Carnes, Bryan; Horace Olmanzar Kelton, Greenville; Alva Lee Harper, Benjamin Preston Harper, Houston; Rassie

Armada Howard, Charles Howard, Willie Carnes Howard, Dr. M. Anderson Lawrence, Moody; Guy Nunnely, Mrs. Guy Nunnely, Waco.

It was announced that the family assemblage felt under obligations to Charles T. Bailey for his courtesy in extending use of press headquarters for meeting.

CLOSING SCENE.

Sudden and Startling Moves Overtaken All Calculations.

New York, Nov. 6.—Monday witnessed the closing scene of one of the most remarkable political campaigns in New York City's history. The variety of sudden, startling moves on the municipal checkerboard have overturned all precedents, upset all calculations and have rendered useless all systems for forecasting the probable outcome. The two old party organizations have been invaded by a new and great force, which, under the name of Municipal Ownership League, and Wm. R. Hearst, as its candidate for mayor, has conducted a campaign so vigorous and so well managed that the city has been astonished at its strength. At first it was believed this movement was one born of momentary excitement and popular clamor, due to insurance revelations and other causes of public unrest, and that when Tammany Hall swung its great organization into line the Hearst movement would decline and collapse before election day. This belief has been dissipated, and instead of declining in force the Hearst canvass wound up Sunday night in a spectacular meeting at Madison Square Garden with the place crowded with all it could hold, many thousands unable to gain admission. The gathering was so great that for several hours the struggling masses of people were beyond control and it was impossible for the police to keep the streets open. When Mr. Hearst rose to speak he was greeted with an outburst of cheering that lasted for nearly twenty minutes.

Another incident of Municipal Ownership League canvass was the calling out of bed of Mr. Hearst at 2 o'clock, Sunday morning to speak at the Hebrew hall at the Grand Central palace. Mayor McClellan, Democratic nominee for re-election, has based his appeals for votes on his record as mayor and fulfillment of promises he made two years ago. He closed the active work of his campaign at a meeting at the Hippodrome Sunday evening, that building being unable to accommodate the many thousands that were gathered to hear him speak.

William M. Ivins, Republican nominee for mayor, began his campaign with a general feeling in the city that he has no chance to win.

LIGHT VOTE PROBABLE.

Republicans and Democrats Express the Most Utmost Confidence.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—With the general expectation on all sides that the vote will be light, managers of both Republican and Democratic organizations expressed confidence of victory at the polls. The Republicans claim are more sweeping, however, and are based upon allegations of more thorough organization. The managers found it almost impossible to create enthusiasm for their tickets among the rank and file of voters and it became apparent that the results of the election might be determined largely by organization work in getting out votes. Although there are five judges of the superior court and associate judge of the circuit court to be chosen, the chief interest centers about the election of president and nine members of the sanitary board. The new law governing the election of sanitary trustees has caused the political parties to place in nomination full sets of candidates for the first time in the history of the sanitary department.

Single Staters Sanguine.

Muskogee, Nov. 6.—Single staters were sanguine of success and expected a large vote on the constitution in their predictions Monday. They claimed 100,000 votes would be polled and single statehood majority was placed at 25,000.

CRASHES INTO CRUISER.

Refrigerator Ship Celtic Runs Into the Mighty Marblehead. Vallejo, Cal., Nov. 6.—Caught by a powerful gust of wind while trying to make a landing a coal wharf at the Mare Island navy yard, the refrigerator ship Celtic crashed into the cruiser Marblehead and into a floating machine shop, doing them so severe damage that the cruiser may have to go out of commission. It is said, while the machine shop was sunk. The force of the impact was so great that two five and nine inch guns of the cruiser were completely demolished, the bridge torn away and two dingies reduced to kindling wood. Two plates of the Marblehead were badly bent and the machine shop, which had been rammed, soon sunk. The Celtic suffered but slightly in the collision. The damage will amount to many thousands of dollars. The sinking of the floating machine shop will, it is said, retard work now being done.

ESCAPE OF PRISONERS.

Entire Matter Has Been Passed Up to the Grand Jury.

Fort Worth, Nov. 6.—A clash exists between county and city peace officers, the result of the alleged charge made that one detective recently aided nine county prisoners to escape. Monday morning the police committee met to make an investigation. It was decided by Chief of Police Maddox and Sheriff Honea that the whole affair be sifted by the grand jury, which will be done.

Will Be Rebuilt.

El Paso, Nov. 6.—Myar theater block will be rebuilt.

Says She Is Hill's Wife.

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 6.—The police are looking for a woman who says she is the wife of James J. Hill, the railroad man. She spoke of her private car, her residence at Newport and her many automobile excursions through the west. She is quite tall, of distinguished bearing and talks well. Her plan is to secure an invitation to stop at a house for a few days and then to secure a loan while waiting for a check from her husband.

Seven persons were soon known to be killed, and about eighteen wounded. The schoolhouse, two churches and a gin were completely wrecked. A heavy rain preceded the cyclone and the streets were a sea of water. Little damage was done in the business portion.
